

Judith Humphrey

BIOGRAPHY

Judith Humphrey, President of The Humphrey Group Inc., is a pioneer and leader in the field of leadership communications.

Raised in Connecticut, Ms. Humphrey earned advanced degrees in English Literature at Indiana University and The University of Rochester. She came to Canada to teach at York University, where she was a humanities instructor for eight years.

She entered the corporate world and became a speech writer for several corporations. As a speech writer she came to see the need for more effective leadership in executive communications. With this vision in mind, she launched The Humphrey Group Inc. in 1987.

The Humphrey Group's team of coaches provides seminars and one-on-one coaching in leadership communications to executives and managers. It also has programs designed specifically for women leaders. Its program called Taking the Stage® shows women how to come out from the wings, take the corporate stage, and project confidence and clarity every time they speak.

Taking the Stage® has been a global success story with companies like IBM, NCR, Dell, Bank of America and Wal Mart bringing The Humphrey Group's Taking the Stage® program to almost 100,000 women on every continent.

The Humphrey Group is a leader in its field, with a strong global presence. Judith is married, has two sons, and one of them heads her firm's Vancouver office.
